

Our cans won't ever end up being displayed in the Guggenheim Museum. They will however, end up displayed on the right shelves at precisely the right time!

It's a well known fact that Andy Warhol made a fortune out of isolating a certain soup can from all the other brands on the shelf. The rest is history! What Andy maybe didn't know, is that his little masterpiece is little more than the works of art that Elite Services create for our many clients day in - day out.

The fact is we've perfected the art of sorting and segregating bulk deliveries for our clients, and while we cannot profess to know one end of a brush from the other, what we do know is how to prevent YOU getting the brush off from your customers in the unlikely event of an unfortunate abstract delivery!

So if you are experiencing a lack of creative inspiration over future deliveries, there's no need to lose an ear because, hopefully we've created an impression, so speak up now!

